Probiotics or Conbiotics: Probiotic Use in Preterm Neonates

Session Date: 07/13/2021

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Probiotic use in premature neonates continues to be a controversial practice. There is a growing literature base supporting use for prevention of necrotizing enterocolitis, reduced rates of sepsis, and decreased mortality. While premature infants have the most to gain in prevention of these high morbidity diseases, they also have the most to lose if probiotic therapy were to go wrong. In this discussion we will review the literature supporting use while examining lingering questions surrounding probiotic use in premature infants.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Define necrotizing enterocolitis and late-onset sepsis in the premature neonate and proposed mechanisms of prevention with probiotic use
2. Review literature supporting the use of probiotics in premature neonates
3. Recognize ongoing questions in using probiotics in premature neonates
