Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including: pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Cardiovascular disease is the leading cause of death in patients with end-stage renal disease (ESRD) on dialysis. In these patients, excessive amounts of aldosterone are associated with increased cardiovascular mortality. Use of mineralocorticoid receptor antagonists (MRAs) has been shown to reduce cardiovascular mortality in non-ESRD patients with heart failure with reduced ejection fraction and has been shown to be beneficial in treating resistant hypertension. However, there are concerns that using MRAs in the ESRD population increases the risk of hyperkalemia and hypotension. This presentation will review the safety and efficacy of MRAs in patients with ESRD.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Discuss the role of MRAs in patients with ESRD
2. Review the literature concerning risks and benefits of MRAs in patients with ESRD
3. Outline a potential MRA treatment regimen for a patient with dialysis-dependent ESRD
