COURSE DESCRIPTION

The 22nd Mayo Clinic Urogynecology and Disorders of the Female Pelvic Floor will present the latest treatments for urogynecology, female urology and pelvic floor disorders. The course features didactic lectures supplemented with video presentations of advanced laparoscopic and robotic surgery, surgical case presentations and panel discussions. The course is designed for surgical and medical practitioners with an interest in current treatment options for the course topics. This course is a collaborative event presented by faculty from:

- > Urogynecology
- > Gynecologic Surgery
- > Urology
- > Gastroenterology
- > Physical Therapy

COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- > Demonstrate advanced techniques in laparoscopic and robotic surgery
- > Demonstrate minimally invasive techniques for the management of urinary incontinence
- > Identify surgical complications of incontinence and prolapse surgery
- > Demonstrate ureteral dissection and identify minimally invasive management options for ureteral repair
- > Explain the use of botulinum toxin injections to manage bladder overactivity
- > Integrate additional anatomic detail into management of pelvic floor dysfunction
- > Explain the use of and demonstrate how sacral nerve stimulation is used to provide management of fecal incontinence
- > Identify evidence-based research on synthetic and non-synthetic materials used in the operative management of pelvic floor prolapse
- > Demonstrate advanced vaginal surgery techniques

INTENDED AUDIENCE

This course is designed for gynecologic and urologic surgeons, gynecologists, urologists, allied health staff and medical practitioners with an interest in current treatments for pelvic floor dysfunction.
