

Dr. Stephanie Steel is a Senior Associate Consultant in the Mayo Clinic Department of Neurology in Rochester, MN. She is from Indianapolis, IN and attended Indiana University for undergraduate and medical school. She completed neurology residency and headache fellowship at Mayo Clinic in Rochester. Her current role is primarily in the community neurology practice as a general neurologist, and she also works in the subspecialty Headache Clinic including headache procedures. Her special interests include education of trainees and primary care providers with a focus on headache management to improve patient access and care. Outside of work she enjoys time with her husband, Jake, and daughter, Meredith.