The JAK of All Trades: Evaluating the Use of JAK Inhibitors in Moderately to Severely Active Ulcerative Colitis

Session Date: 01/07/2025

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

The American Gastroenterological Association released guideline updates in November of 2024 following approval of seven new therapies for treatment of moderate-to-severe ulcerative colitis (UC) since the last guidelines were published in 2020, including expanded use of Janus Kinase (JAK) Inhibitors. With the rapid expansion of therapeutic options and few direct comparative trials to guide clinical practice, clinicians are left with the question of when to use JAK Inhibitors or alternative agents after failure or intolerance of TNF alpha antagonists. This presentation will examine literature and guideline recommendations surrounding JAK Inhibitor efficacy and safety for moderate-to-severe UC treatment.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Describe the mechanism of action of Janus Kinase (JAK) Inhibitors in moderately to severely active ulcerative colitis (UC).
2. Evaluate current literature for place in therapy of JAK Inhibitors in moderately to severely active UC.
3. Determine appropriate use of specific JAK Inhibitors with consideration for efficacy, safety, and other patient specific factors.
