Taking a Breather: Volatile Anesthetics in the ICU

Session Date: 08/05/2025

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

In the United States, the most common sedation strategy for mechanically ventilated patients involves the use of intravenous sedatives. With emerging literature and a potentially soon to be approved delivery system, volatile anesthetics may soon become a viable sedation option for ICU providers. This presentation will begin by exploring the need for sedation during mechanical ventilation and the challenges associated with current sedation practices. Attendees will then review the pharmacology of volatile anesthetics, including their mechanisms of action, pharmacokinetics, and safety considerations. The session will conclude by examining how volatile agents may be integrated into a personalized approach to ICU sedation, with discussion of potential benefits, limitations, and future directions for their use.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Describe the role and importance of sedation in patients requiring mechanical ventilation.
2. Explain the pharmacology of volatile anesthetics, including their mechanisms of action, pharmacokinetics, and safety considerations.
3. Rationalize a personalized approach to sedation strategies in the ICU.
