ALL* in: Dasatinib vs. Ponatinib in Targeted Therapy for Ph+ Acute Lymphocytic Leukemia

Session Date: 4/28/2026

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Historic therapies for Philadelphia chromosome positive (Ph+) B-Cell Acute Lymphocytic Leukemia (ALL) have been centered around highly cytotoxic chemotherapies including the HyperCVAD regimen. With the approval of tyrosine kinase inhibitors (TKI), prognosis has significantly improved. Incorporating TKIs into chemotherapy-free regimens may allow patients to experience better outcomes with fewer adverse reactions. The guidelines published by the National Comprehensive Cancer Network (NCCN®) recommend combination therapy with a TKI, but do not specify a preferred option. Both dasatinib and ponatinib have been studied in this patient population, but they differ in side effect profile, ability to overcome common resistance mutations and more. This presentation will walk audiences through the literature behind these agents and the considerations important in selecting a chemotherapy regimen for patients with Ph+ B-Cell ALL.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Identify the key therapies used in management of Philadelphia chromosome positive B-Cell acute lymphocytic leukemia (Ph+ ALL)
2. Describe the outcomes associated with chemotherapy free regimens for Ph+ B-Cell ALL
3. Select an appropriate chemotherapy regimen for a patient with newly diagnosed Ph+ B-Cell ALL
