Olezarsen: A Novel Therapy for Triglyceride Control

Session Date: 05/19/2026

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Familial Chylomicronemia Syndrome (FCS) is a rare genetic condition resulting in impaired triglyceride metabolism. Due to the mechanism of FCS, traditional triglyceride-lowering therapies have proven ineffective. At least 85% of patients with FCS are hospitalized at least once with acute pancreatitis, with resulting in-hospital mortality of up to 8%. Olezarsen is an antisense nucleotide with a novel mechanism of action that has demonstrated efficacy in reducing triglyceride levels in patients with FCS, leading to FDA approval for this indication and spurring additional research exploring potential utility for patients with hypertriglyceridemia. This presentation will review relevant literature and examine potential ramifications of utilizing this new therapeutic agent.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Identify why olezarsen is an effective therapy for patients with Familial Chylomicronemia Syndrome.
2. Describe current literature regarding olezarsen safety and outcomes.
3. Determine if olezarsen is appropriate to recommend given patient-specific factors.
