Before or After: Timing Immunotherapy in Colon Cancer

Session Date: 09/01/2026

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Cancer is a leading cause of mortality in the United States and worldwide. The development of targeted therapies, including immune checkpoint inhibitors, provides new avenues for treatment of patients with many cancers, including colorectal cancer. Based upon the recent NICHE-2 study and ATOMIC study, immunotherapy use may be considered in the neoadjuvant or adjuvant setting of patients with mismatch repair-deficient non metastatic colon cancer. With significant differences between these trials, questions remain as to how immunotherapy can best be incorporated into therapy regimens for patients with colon cancer. This presentation aims to explore the use of immunotherapy and consider optimal timing of immune therapy in this population.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Identify colon cancer patients most likely to benefit from immunotherapy
2. Describe the evidence to support neoadjuvant immunotherapy for mismatch repair-deficient, non-metastatic colon cancer
3. Evaluate the evidence to support adjuvant immunotherapy for mismatch repair-deficient, non-metastatic colon cancer
