Biosimilars: Science, Switching, and Savings

Session Date: 10/13/2026

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Since the first FDA-approved biosimilar entered the U.S. market in 2015, biosimilars have expanded treatment options for biologic therapy and helped reduce medication costs for hospitals, health systems, and certain patient populations. Despite these benefits, adoption remains inconsistent for a variety of reasons including formulary and payer preferences, limited interchangeability designations, provider hesitancy, and inventory challenges. This presentation will describe the defining characteristics of biosimilar medications, review evidence supporting their safety and effectiveness, and examine current literature and practices designed to increase uptake of these agents and the barriers that remain to wider adoption.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Identify key characteristics of biosimilars
2. Determine appropriate biosimilar substitutions
3. Evaluate differing methods for providing preferred biosimilar agents
