

Evan Curtin
Executive Director/CEO, WellShare International

Ecurtin@wellshareinternational.org

Evan Curtin is the Executive Director of WellShare International, where he leads the development and expansion of sustainable, community-based health services designed to improve access, strengthen community resilience, and better connect people with the healthcare and support systems they need.

His career has focused on nonprofit executive leadership and the development of sustainable emergency and health support services at both the policy and service-delivery levels. His work centers on translating community needs and public policy into practical, scalable models of care, with particular emphasis on organizational innovation, cross-sector partnerships, and long-term service sustainability.